

We may be small, a mere single thread in the tapestry of humanity, insignificant by ourselves, but we are each still important to the whole, if you ever seen, pulling a single thread out of a shirt can cause the entire garment to begin unraveling